DETAILED ACTION

Election/Restrictions

Restriction is required under 35 U.S.C. 121 and 372.

This application contains the following inventions or groups of inventions which are not so linked as to form a single general inventive concept under PCT Rule 13.1.

In accordance with 37 CFR 1.499, applicant is required, in reply to this action, to elect a single invention to which the claims must be restricted.

Group 1, claim(s) 7-15, drawn to a method of making a cell culture substrate, comprising irradiating the substrate through a light-shielding portion to form a pattern of two types of areas, those to which cells do adhere and those to which cells do not adhere.

Group 2, claim(s) 16, drawn to an apparatus for making a cell culture substrate comprising a cell culture chamber, a cell culture substrate, and a source of radiation.

The inventions listed as Groups 1-2 do not relate to a single general inventive concept under PCT Rule 13.1 because, under PCT Rule 13.2, they lack the same or corresponding special technical features for the following reasons.

The requirement of unity of invention is not fulfilled because there is no technical relationship among these inventions involving one or more of the same or corresponding special technical features. The expression "special technical features" means those technical features that define a contribution which each of the claimed inventions, considered as a whole, makes over the prior art. Therefore, a technical relationship is lacking among the claimed inventions involving one or more special technical features. The technical feature that links the 2 groups of inventions is a cell culture substrate and a source of radiation.

The inventions of Groups 1-2 do not share the common special technical feature of a cell culture substrate and a source of radiation, because Singvhi et al. (US 6,368,838) disclose a cell culture substrate and a source of radiation (see col. 3, line 49, to col. 5, line 18).

Thus, the technical feature of a cell culture substrate and a source of radiation does not define the invention over the prior art. Because the common technical feature is not novel (special) with respect to the cited reference, it is clear that the claims of Groups 1-2 lack a single common technical feature that defines them over the prior art.

Further, an international application containing claims to different categories of inventions will be considered to have unity of invention if the claims are drawn only to one of certain combinations of categories:

- (1) A product and a process specially adapted for the manufacture of said product; or

Art Unit: 1652

- (2) A product and process of use of said product; or
- (3) A product, a process specially adapted for the manufacture of the said product, and a use of the said product; or
- (4) A process and an apparatus or means specifically designed for carrying out the said process; or
- (5) A product, a process specially adapted for the manufacture of the said product, and an apparatus or means specifically designed for carrying out the said process (see 37 CFR 1.475(b)-(d)). In the instant case, the apparatus of Group 2 is one that irradiates any cell culture substrate. It is not specially designed to perform the method of Group 1. Moreover, the cell culture substrate of Group 1 may be made by coating the substrate with a cell adhesion layer containing a photocatalyst, applying a mask and irradiating it. A special apparatus is not required. Thus, this combination of inventions does not comply with the aforementioned Rules. But, because a corresponding special technical feature is not present, Groups 1 and 2 cannot be considered to have unity of invention.

Applicant is advised that the reply to this requirement to be complete must include an election of the invention to be examined even though the requirement be traversed (37 CFR 1.143).

Applicant is reminded that upon the cancellation of claims to a non-elected invention, the inventorship must be amended in compliance with 37 CFR 1.48(b) if one or more of the currently named inventors is no longer an inventor of at least one claim remaining in the application. Any amendment of inventorship must be accompanied by a request under 37 CFR 1.48(b) and by the fee required under 37 CFR 1.17(i).
